
Why Infinity?

Infinity is designed and developed by technical writers for technical writers. The platform comes with features we think are useful from our own experience working with different tools and outputs over these years.

In the past, we have used on-premises linear documentation or help authoring tools, DITA-XML-based systems, other cloud-based documentation tools, and more recently, the docs-as-code setup. But we have realized that doc teams and companies are always on the lookout for something easy to use, scalable, and available. Especially now that the world is moving to the cloud, a simple browser-based tool is desired, which is easy to use and allows one-click instant publishing of doc updates.

Infinity provides a simple yet powerful authoring environment that is better and cost-effective than similar cloud-based platforms and on-premises tools available in the market.